Madame

This to let you know

~~I have just received your letter of the 10th inst. and am glad to hear that you are well and happy. I am very much interested in you and hope to hear from you again soon. I am, dear Madame, your most affectionate friend, and I am, I trust, like myself,~~

The Author to the Reader.

THE proper use and Design of a Latin Dictionary, suited to English and tender Capacities is in (brief) the Translating of Latin into English first (as being the easiest) and then the turning of English into Latin (some Grammatical foundation being presupposed) without the help of other Books.

In answer to this Design it should consist of two parts ; One containing all Words (both Appellative and Proper) all Idioms and Phrases used in the Latin Tongue, with apposite English suited thereunto ; The other containing all kind of Words, Terms of Art and Phrases used in the English Tongue, with proper Latin suited to them ; and both in an Alphabetical Order ; because that is most suitable to the weakest Capacities, and is not (in the least) prejudicial to the strongest.

Having therefore (as to this general Design) observed what is amiss, superfluous and wanting in others : That we have here endeavoured to Rectifie, Retrench and Supply.

In the Latin part, many Words and Phrases are much more properly rendered than they were in any other ; and where a single word could conveniently be had, we chose it rather than a long and tedious Periphrasis.

We have not heapt up Synonyma's, but yet took care that Words (especially the Primitives) should have the whole variety of their several Significations.

Such useful Explications, Directions and References as were wont to be in Latin, are here in plain and intelligible English. But such Latin Explications as were afterwards repeated again in English, we judged a needless vanity, and therefore have omitted them. We have also omitted tedious Etymologies, which (for the most part) depended merely upon Conjectures, and were of little or no Use at all to Children ; but have given them, where they are plain, and rationally to be deduced. How carefully they have been considered, and how well performed, we refer to the Judgment of the Learned.

The quantities are here made more complete, by being placed over initial Vowels, as well as other Syllables.

Many Phrases and Proper Names (with the hardest of their Genitives) are added from Calepine, Ferrarius, and others.

The method also of Calepine is here observed in placing all (both Common and Proper) in an Alphabetical order. Which cannot be blamed by any that considers the great conveniency of dispatch in the search of any thing required, the natural dependency of one upon another, the many Repetitions and References that were wont to be made from one to another, and are all by this method saved.

But that method of Calepine and others after him (who wrote for Men) in placing the Derivatives all under their Primitives, is not (in the least) to be followed by those who pretend that they condescend to the lowest capacities. For they are sometimes so strangely changed, that it puzzles an experienced judgment where to look them.

In the English part, the Corrections are so many and so great, as would take up too much time and room to relate.

Thousands of Words, Particles, Idioms, Phrases and Proverbs are added. Together with the whole body of Proper Names, not only of Men and Women men, and places here in England (so far as could be procured) but also the Modern names of Foreign Countries, Islands, Mountains, Cities, Rivers, and other noted places, especially in Europe, as France, Germany, &c.

Some obsolete Words and uncouth Phrases are among the rest, because we are to suppose the very worst that any one can have occasion to turn into Latin, without intending the English for use. For as in the Latin part only the English, so in the English part only the Latin is to be propos'd for imitation. And the want of this consideration gave occasion to many mistakes in other works of this nature.

The English irregular Plurals of Nouns, and Preter-tenses of Verbs are here (to our utmost) observed. Together with such English Substantives, as are also taken and used as Adjectives, than which there is hardly any thing more common, yet nothing less regarded, or more needful to be understood.

And all in a regular and Alphabetical

By the Bookseller.

THis Book hath sufficiently commended it self to the World by the Sale of almost 4000 in less than two years time.

There is lately Published by the same Author Mr Elisha Coles, and sold by Peter Parker at the Leg and Star in Cornhill,

An English Dictionary: Explaining the difficult Terms that are used in Divinity, Husbandry, Physick, Philosophy, Law, Navigation, Mathematicks, and other Arts and Sciences. Containing many Thousands of hard Words (and proper names of Places) more than are in any other English Dictionary or Expositor. Together with the Etymological Derivation of them from their proper Fountains, whether Hebrew, Greek, Latin, French, or any other Language, in a Method more comprehensive, than any that is extant.

Intended for the help of such as understand not the Latin, and other Learned Languages, that they may arrive at a competent Knowledge to read and write English with the greater Judgment and Certainty.

Nomenclatura Trilinguis; Anglo-Latino-Græca; or, a short vocabulary English, Latin and Greek. With a Collection of Proverbs, also Examples of the 5 Declensions, and for Declining Greek Nouns Latinized. To which is added in this 6th Edition, Terms used in Rhetorick. The like for young beginners never before printed. Price 10 d. Sold by T. Guy, P. Parker, A. Churchill, and G. Conyers.

Colloquia Trilingua, Eng. Lat. Gr. Being Familiar Forms fit to bind with the Nomenclatura

Order. As also the names of Birds, Beasts, and other things that were wont to be in particular Tables of many little Dictionaries within the greater. Which was far from being suited to the common use of Schools or Childrens capacities. Because it supposed in them not only a Manly judgment but a judgment Philosophical. For unless they know beforehand what the thing is, or what General Head it is under, they must of necessity search all those petty Dictionaries, or at least look so long till they find. But a little experience will practically demonstrate the usefulness of our Method, and all we have done.

I think there is none can object the smallness of the Character, who considers, that it is intended for young eyes, in the perusal of a word or two, and not to be pored on as a continued discourse. But especially considering how much is comprised in so little room, that it might be much more Portable and far less chargeable than others.
